

The Spooky Men's Chorale

“It is not possible to state when the existence of the Spooky Men first came to light. Early settlers in the Blue Mountains reported attacks on livestock and evidence of scats and the occasional pawprint. It is only in recent years that sceptics have been disabused of the notion that the Spooky Men's Chorale is the stuff of fanciful legend.”

The Spooky Men's Chorale are a fearsome bunch of larrikins with a full range of body and facial hair configurations and the sometimes accidental ability to make audiences both weep and cry at the hopeless beauty and hapless stupidity of their vocal machinations...

Known for unusual fetishism around costumery and choreography, the Spookies also redefine pointless masculine boofiness with such tawdry anthems as “Don't Stand Between a Man and His Tool”. They currently clutch copies of their new CD, Tooled Up, a recording odyssey which remarkably involved the death of no mastodons.

RECENT SIGHTINGS

National Folk Festival, Canberra, 2004 and 2005

Woodford Folk Festival 2004-5

A Thousand & One Spooky Nights, Blackheath, Jan 2005

Melbourne Museum Twilight Series, Feb 2005

Blue Mountains Folk Festival, March 2005

For booking enquiries please contact:
Stephen Taberner - 0404 092 597 taberner@tpg.com.au

w w w . s p o o k y m e n . c o m